Prevention Program Resources for Children with Special Needs

This resource guide was developed for families who have children birth to three years old who are in the "Prevention Program" and who are at risk for a developmental disability (or who may have a current developmental disability). The Prevention Program is administered by Alta California Regional Center. The guide has been made possible by collaboration between WarmLine Family Resource Center (FRC) and Alta.

"Resources for Children with Special Needs" was created to assist parents of children in the Prevention Program with finding providers of services and programs which may be of help. The resources contained here include programs and services in the community where typical children gather and those that are specifically for children with special needs.

"Resources for Children with Special Needs" is organized into three sections. The first section is organized according to the type of services provided, such as "Occupational Therapy." The agencies that provide occupational therapy can be found in that section. In part two, the "Provider Information Section," you will find many of the providers listed alphabetically. Those entries include a listing of the services offered by each provider, the ages served, and some information about fees, billing, and the types of insurance accepted. Part three contains listings of publicly funded health care providers such as MediCal, private health insurance companies and pediatric sub-specialists in the Sacramento area by their hospital affiliation. There is also a list of dentists whose names have been recommended by parents and professionals.

Every effort has been made to provide accurate information in this booklet. However, because services are subject to change, you should always contact the provider for the most up-to-date information. Please feel free to call us at WarmLine Family Resource Center if you have questions.

Alta Regional Center is not responsible for providing payment for any of these services if your child is in the Prevention Program.

WarmLine Family Resource Center does not endorse or recommend any providers. This resource is provided for the convenience of parents and professionals.

About the Prevention Program

The Prevention Program was created when changes were made to the Early Start Program by the California State Legislature in 2009. While the Prevention Program is not part of California's Early Start Program, there is "one point of entry" to Early Start and the Prevention Program for all children who may be at risk for developmental delay or who have an identified developmental delay or disability. In the Sacramento area, Alta California Regional Center is that "one point of entry."

Who is eligible for the Prevention Program?

1. Infants and toddlers who are at risk for developmental delay or disability with two or more risk factors; or
2. Toddlers age 24 to 36 months of age at the time of initial referral who have a delay of less than 50% in one developmental area; or
3. Children with a parent who has a developmental disability.

What Services does the Prevention Program provide for eligible infants, toddlers, and their families?

Services include:

- ☆ Intake and Assessment
- ☆ Developmental monitoring and guidance
- ☆ Case management
- ☆ Referral to generic agencies and resources
- ☆ Exit planning

For more information on eligibility and services provided by the Prevention Program, please contact:

What Is WarmLine Family Resource Center?

- "My two year old needs a daycare program. No one I've talked with will even consider her because she has special needs. Can you help?"
- "My teen with special needs is leaving high school and I don't know where he'll live or what kind of work he'll be able to get. Do you know who I can call?"
- "My daughter is pregnant with our first grandchild and just found out that the baby will be born with Down syndrome. Can you give us some information and tell us where to find support?"
- "I have a client whose two year old has recently been diagnosed with a developmental delay. Do you know a parent who has a child with a similar diagnosis who can provide support?"
- "I'm working with the family of a child who is receiving special education services and they have questions about their rights. Can you help them?"

WarmLine is an information and support center for parents and professionals involved with children birth to age 22 with special health care or developmental needs. We receive calls from both parents and professionals regarding a vast array of issues, needs, and services such as health care, child care and special education.

WarmLine Family Resource Center can make a difference in the lives of families we serve. Family time can be hampered by the stress and demands of locating supportive services. We link callers with resources, often saving them hours of research and frustration. Our services include:

- § Information and Referral — Linking families with services.
- § Family Support — Providing one-to-one parent support and support group referrals.
- § Outreach — Increasing public awareness of disabilities and available services.
- § Advocacy — Strengthening parents' knowledge and decision-making abilities.
- § Workshops and Seminars — Training parents and professionals.
- § Resources — Books, tapes and articles on disability, as well as WarmLine publications.
- § Information Packets — Customized information on disability related subjects.
- § Community Resource Parents — Local staff in each of the six counties we serve.

Information is empowering. People going into a situation well prepared have a better chance of coming out knowing that they have given it their best. WarmLine seeks to inform and support parents and professionals in any way we can.

Comments: MAPS is a program that supports children who have developmental delays in play with children who have typical skills. The primary purpose of the play groups is for the children to learn to make friends while having fun together. Children from the community may benefit from the program by enhancing their self-esteem as role models while learning to accept, include and help children with differing abilities. MAPS groups meet 2 or 3 days per week for 1 ½ hr. Groups are established to meet on a continuing basis for six months or longer, according to the needs of the children. We also encourage the siblings and friends of children in the program to participate and are dedicated to developing a community of tolerance and inclusion for all children.

Glossary

Advocate: Someone who takes action to help someone else (as in "educational advocate"); also, to take action on someone's behalf.

Advocacy Training: Training that helps the parent to better understand the process and advocate for his/her child.

Aphasia: A weakening or loss of the ability to understand language (spoken or written).

Asperger's Syndrome: A neurological disorder in which children have normal intelligence and language skills, but have autistic-like behaviors and serious difficulty with social and communication skills. One of the disorders on the "autism spectrum".

Assistive Technology (AT): Any item, piece of equipment, or system used to increase, maintain, or improve function of individuals with disabilities.

Assessment: Observing and testing a child in order to identify the strengths and needs of that child. Assessment makes it possible to develop an appropriate educational program and to monitor progress.

At Risk: A term used for children who have, or could have, developmental problems that affect later learning.

Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD): A combination of symptoms relating to inattention and hyperactivity-impulsivity that last for at least 6 months and are not consistent with the child's developmental level.

Audiology: Service provided by a licensed audiologist who identifies and works with people with hearing loss.

Auditory Processing: The ability to understand, remember, and use information that is heard, both as words and as other verbal sounds.

Augmentative and Alternative Communication (AAC): Augmentative and alternative communication is the use of other means to communicate in support of, or as an alternative to, speech.

Autism: A disorder which severely impairs a person's ability to communicate and to interact with other people and usually occurs before the age of three. Autism is usually referred to as a spectrum disorder (ASD) - that is, a disorder in which symptoms can occur in any combination and with varying degrees of severity.

Behavior Assessment - see Functional Behavior Assessment.

Cerebral Palsy: A range of neuromuscular disorders caused by injury to an infant's brain sustained during late pregnancy, birth, or trauma during the first two years of life. Children with cerebral palsy may have difficulty walking, speaking or swallowing.

Cognition; Cognitive Skills: Thinking skills; sometimes referred to as pre-academic or problem-solving skills in preschoolers.

Communicatively Handicapped (CH): Term used to describe children whose major disability is in the area of speech and language.

Deaf-Blind: A disability in which children have impairment of both vision and hearing that affects their ability to learn.

Developmental: Having to do with the stages of growth and development before the age of eighteen.

Developmental Specialist: Someone who tests a child to measure how his/her development compares to other children of the same age.

Developmentally Delayed: Describes a child who is not able to perform the skills that other children of the same age can perform.

Down Syndrome: A chromosomal disorder that results in mild to severe developmental delays and physical symptoms.

Emotionally Disturbed (ED): A term used to describe children who have behavior problems significantly interfering with learning or from getting along with other people; the behavior must occur for a long period of time.

Early Intervention Services: Services designed to identify and reduce the impact of a developmental problem as early as possible.

Early Start: California's program to help families whose infants or toddlers have, disabilities or developmental delays.

Evaluation: The collection of information about a student's learning needs, strengths, and interests.

Expressive Language: Ability to produce language for communicating with other people.

Family Resource Center (FRC): An organization of parents who are dedicated to serving families whose children have disabilities. This is done through parent-to-parent support, advocacy training, information and resources. The FRC for Sacramento, Yolo, Placer, El Dorado, Nevada and Alpine Counties is WarmLine Family Resource Center.

Fine Motor Skills: Skills needing the use of hands or the use of small muscle groups.

Functional Behavior Assessment: "Behavior assessment" usually performed by a behavioral specialist or psychologist, it identifies problem behavior and provides interventions to teach acceptable alternatives to the behavior.

Gross Motor Skills: Skills needing the use of large muscle groups.

IQ: Intelligence Quotient: The score obtained on a test of mental ability.

Head Start: Pre-school program for qualifying children ages 3 to 4 years. Head Start provides health, nutritional, educational, social and other services. Ten percent of children served must be children with disabilities. (Early Head Start provides services to children less than 3 years old.)

Hearing Impaired (HI): A term used to describe children whose major disability is in the area of hearing and understanding speech.

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (I.D.E.A): The Federal Law that guarantees children with disabilities will receive a Free and Appropriate Public Education (FAPE) in the Least Restrictive Environment. This may be accomplished in a special education and/or regular education setting.

Inclusion: Children with and without disabilities participating together in an educational setting. Students with disabilities are placed in typical classrooms taught by regular education teachers. Help from special education teachers and/or special instruction and services can offer additional support in such a setting.

Individualized Education Program (IEP): A written plan for children ages 3 to 22 years which states a child's present level of educational performance, sets annual goals and short-term objectives, and identifies appropriate services needed to meet those goals.

Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP): A written plan for families and children aged birth to three years which includes a statement of the family's priorities and resources and a statement of the child's present levels of development with outcomes and services to be provided.

Individualized Program Plan (IPP): A written, person-centered plan for persons after age 3 prepared by Regional Center and parents which includes the child's and family's desires, information about the child, and a plan for delivering services.

Integration: Children with and without disabilities participating in community activities together.

Language Delay: A lag or delay in the development of a child's ability to speak or understand language.

Lanterman Act: The Lanterman Developmental Disabilities Services Act (Lanterman Act) is that part of California law that sets out the rights and responsibilities of persons with developmental disabilities, and creates the agencies, including regional centers, responsible for planning and coordinating services and supports for persons with developmental disabilities and their families.

Learning Disability/Learning Handicap (LD/LH): A disability in which children have problems using language, remembering, concentrating, following instructions, reading, calculating or learning through listening or looking.

Low Incidence: Hearing impairment, visual impairment, severe orthopedic impairment, or a combination of the three.

Mentally Retarded: Describes a person who is not able to perform the skills that other people of the same age can perform. Used in the Regional Center system, education and medicine but can be regarded as offensive to some people—particularly parents who prefer the term “Developmentally Delayed” or “Cognitively Delayed”.

Multi-handicapped (MH): When a child has two or more disabilities.

Natural Environment: A place where infants and toddlers without disabilities and their families might typically be found. Early Intervention services are required to be provided in a natural environment as much as possible.

Occupational Therapy (OT): A service provided by a licensed occupational therapist who assists children with fine motor activities and everyday tasks like eating, dressing and hand use.

Orientation and Mobility (O&M): A service provided by an orientation and mobility specialist who teaches children with visual impairments how to know their position in space and how to move safely from place to place.

Orthopedically Impaired (OI): A disability in which children have difficulty getting around without adaptive equipment, e.g., wheelchair, braces, etc.

Pervasive Developmental Disorder (PDD): A term used to describe a group of disorders in which there are delays in development of social and communication skills. Autism is the best understood PDD. Other types of PDD include Asperger’s syndrome, childhood disintegrative disorder, Rett’s syndrome, and PDDNOS (not otherwise specified). Children with PDD vary widely in abilities, intelligence and behaviors.

Physical Therapy (PT): A service provided by a licensed physical therapist who assists children with gross motor activities such as rolling, sitting, and walking.

Preschool: Refers to classrooms that serve children three to five years of age.

Receptive Language: Recognition and/or understanding of what is heard.

Reverse Mainstreaming: Children without disabilities going to the special education classroom to play and learn with children with disabilities.

Self-Help Skills: A term relating to skills such as feeding, dressing, and toileting.

Sensory Integration (or Processing) Therapy: Usually provided by a specially trained occupational therapist, SI therapy does not attempt to develop specific skills, but rather provides the sensory and motor activities which help the overall functioning of the nervous system and helps the child to cope with the sensory input from the environment.

Sensory Processing Disorder: A condition that exists when sensory signals don't get organized into appropriate responses. Treated with Sensory Integration (or Processing) Therapy.

Special Day Class (SDC): A classroom set aside for children who would benefit from specialized services for over half of the school day; the children receive most of their teaching from a special education teacher.

Speech/Language Therapy: Services provided by a remedial language and speech therapist or speech pathologist who helps children learn to communicate.

Transition: A time in a person's life when he or she moves from one education program to another.

Visual Impairment (VI): A disability in which children have a vision loss that affects their ability to learn.
